

In language learning,
project work incorporates
student input,
with content deriving
from real foreign language use through extensive contact with
native texts,
integrating language
skills, and extending over several weeks or more

(Eyring, 1997)

